Dear Parent/Carer

British Science Week is a ten-day nationwide celebration of science, technology, engineering, and maths (STEM), coordinated by the British Science Association. To celebrate, we will be having a whole-school science day on Friday 13th March. Our theme this year is: Curiosity what's your question? Throughout the day, children will be undertaking a series of experiments and science themed activities attempting to answer different questions. We will also be encouraging the children to ask their own questions and get curious!

To enhance the day, we are inviting pupils to dress up as something science related should they wish. We appreciate that this is close to world book day, so we are encouraging children to make their costumes from things you already have at home. Why not make loo-roll binoculars and become an explorer? Cover yourself in paper stars and become the universe. Pop on an apron and become a chef, or strap on your goggles/snorkel and add dark clothing to become a marine biologist. We are looking forward to seeing what you can come up with! Please be aware that children will be taking part in some sports science sessions, so will still need sensible footwear and clothing they can move in.

Kind regards
L Gibbs
